

Ecosystems

Living organisms are organized into complex communities called ecosystems. The nonliving physical characteristics of the ecosystem (temperature, wind, moisture, etc.) provide for the needs of the organisms, from the tiniest microorganism to the most massive animal.

